I professional rationalist and I expect all of us not only to know what they are doing and why but to be right in their decisions. I know that someone has said that a good manager needs to be right in more than half of his decisions. But that is not good enough for me. I would agree that you may be excused for occasionally making a mistake, especially if it is a matter beyond your control, but I can never excuse you for not acting rationally."
"I agree with your idea, Eleanor," said Jill Goldberg, her advertising manager, "and a aways try to be rational and logical in my decisions. But would you mind helping me be sure of this by explaining just what acting rationally is"?
Explain how the vice president of marketing might describe what is involved in making rational decisions.	ļ
